Not illustrated. 1896 Excerpt: .We supplement our sense with all sorts of artificial aids, mechanical inventions and the enslaved forces of nature, but the brutes and the birds seem often to far outmaster us in their sensibility. How does the homing pigeon direct her flight so unerringly to her dwelling place when let loose hundreds of miles away from it? And those senses which we have, and sometimes fancy to be very fairly developed, are put to shame by some poor human creature, who has only half as many channels of contact with the material universe as ourselves. The blind attain to marvellous delicacy of touch and hearing, and the deaf learn to talk as well as those with the best of ears simply through the study of the movements of the lips. I. Now the Holy Ghost teaches us that there is a vast and very lovely spiritual world lying behind, being as it were veiled by, this natural world of sense. That spiritual realm is the natural home of the angels. Balaam s ass was given power to discern the form of one of these bright spirits opposing the sinful prophet s course. Afterwards the prophet s own eyes were opened, as the Bible puts it, and he too saw the menacing messenger of God. Often we read of the eyes of men being thus opened to recognize angelic existences which they could not discern with unaided human vision. Our natural life is thus allowed from time to...
